FREW & CAMPBELL,

MONDAY, MARCH 8, 1875.

A Special Commission created by the Massachusetts Legislature have reportvery fine discourse which was attentively bettered to be also the subject of the State and municipal taration. They looked on the increasing debts of municipalities as an evil, and recommended the enactment of a statute which should forbid any municipality to incur a debt beyond a certain fixed percent, of the assessed value of the property taxable for its payment, and that municipalities be required to provide that for a debt created without special legislative sanction, faxation shall at once begin for the foundation of a sinking fund that shall meet the principal of the debt when due. They do not agree with the proposal of New York State to except personal property from taxation, saving: "The tendency of the taxing only real estate would be to raise, and thus increase the cost of living to all, while the wealthy bond owner would go comparatively free from the tax, which he would shift upon his poor day-laboring tenant. Thus the poor would really be most injured by this plan." While acknowledging that the object of the income tax is generally evaded, "either through ignorance or design," the commissioners advise against its repeal, as taxing many who would otherwise escape and as being founded both in economy and justice. They regard the system of discounts for promppayment as a bad one; do not favor an exemption of mortgages from taxation; favor the continuation of the tax on capital outside of the State, and the continuation of the tax on capital outside of the State, and the continuation of the tax on capital outside of the State, and the continuation of the tax on capital outside of the State, and the continuation of the tax on capital outside of the State, and the continuation of the tax on capital outside of the State, and the continuation of the tax on capital outside of the State, and the continuation of the tax on capital outside of the State, and the continuation of the tax on capital outside of the State, and the continuation of the tax on capital outside of the State, and the continuation of the t ed at great length and thoroughness on the subject of the State and municipal tal outside of the State, and the continued exemption of literary and charitable in-

THE stagnation of trade in Wales, owing to the lock-out of laborers in the coal and iron works, seems to be much greater than any of which complaints have been made in this country. Ryland's Trade Circular mentions dozens of iron works in Wales where work is wholly suspended. One employed 11,000 and another 12,000 hands. The iron works have suspended operations for want of coal, not for want of orders, so that the "lock-out" of laborers in the collieries is the initial cause of the stagnation. The effects are widespread. The tracks of the railway companies are crowded with empty cars and trucks, and the employes of the railway companies are being discharged or employed in miscellaneous ork to retain them in the service; the comotives are laid up in the sheds, and to wages of workmen depending on the stom of the fron workers and cattle.

Indian question: "In 1874 ninety-eight persons were killed on the Eric Railway at an expense to the road of $104,721 14 or about $900 per head. And yet to kill Indians it costs the government over $5,-000 per head. It shows once more that it is not possible for the government to compete successfully with private enterprise. Give the red men free passes and keep them traveling pretty steadily and the Indian problem is solved."

ARCHIBITOP MANNING has gone from London to Rome after that hat, Bishon Latimer, in his second sermon before King Edward VI., in 1549, remarked These Romish hats never brought good into England." Half a dozen years afterwards the wearer of the next Cardinal's hat that was brought from Rome to England sent Latimer to be reasted.

WHEN the Brooklyn Jury was made up all the candidates should have been subjected to a careful medical examination, with special reference to their powers of endurance. A list of questions might have been prepared similar to those an application for a life insurance policy.
